The alarm was a comparatively long time reaching the business part of the town, and the fire engine was slow in being brought out. When the engine did get to the fire the valves were dry and wouldn't work until they were put in order. Meantime the flames made rapid progress, and four wooden tenant houses, all abutting on each other, were past saving. From them Mr. Hazelrigg's stable, across a narrow lot, caught fire, and it, a corn-crib and buggy-shed, all under one roof, were consumed. Colored people occupied the houses and saved much of their goods. The loss is only a few hundred dollars on the buildings, but they were a remunerative property, bringing Mr. Hazelrigg $16 per month rent. The engine finally got to work, and some fencing was put out with it.

RECOGNITION.

No song is ever vain; the shyest bird whose melody is sweet is not unheard. The nightingale, in fondness' woodland glen, is never beyond the charmed ears of men, And, soon or late, the world's outwaking heart beats each rare flower that blooms in desert sand.

Nor ocean's depths, nor arctic snows can hide the secret of their treasure gold,

Think not to be overlooked; mankind is wise.

And naught of value long escapes its eyes. Each day, in court or palace, from your birth;

The world has paid you all it found you worth.

If you have missed the goal toward which you yearned,

Sum of this: the goal has not been earned.

Men may be false, but man is ever true.

And man still metes his honest due.

Who rails at fate but mocks his own re-treat?

Who weeps at "fortune's crown" admits defeat.

And yielding marks his great unworthiness.

For failure never yet deserved success.

The world's seasons, but the world is just, And gold is won with gold and dust with dust.

To every other name is given renown,

On whose royal head is placed a crown.

PART IV.

CHAPTER XVII.

NARRATIVE CONTINUED BY THE DOCTOR—THE JOLLY BOAT'S LAST TRIP.

This fifth trip was quite different from any of the others. In the first place, the little gallop of a boat that we were in was greatly overloaded. Five grown men, and three of them—Trelawney, Redruth and the captain—over six feet high, was already more than she was meant to carry. Add to that the powder, pork and the bread-bags. The gunwale was lipping astern. Several times we shipped a little water, and my breeches and the tails of my coat were all soaking wet before we had gone 100 yards.

The captain made us trim the boat, and we got her to lie a little more evenly. All the same, we were afraid to breathe.

In the second place, the ebb was now making—a strong rippling current running westward through the basin, and then southward and seawards down the straits by which we had entered in the morning. Even the ripples were a danger to our overloaded craft; but the worst of it was that we were swept out of our true course, and away from our proposed landing-place, and the point. If we let ourselves have it our way, we should come ashore beside the gigs, where the pirates might appear at any moment.

"I cannot keep her head for the stockade, sir," said I to the captain. I was steering, while he and Redruth, two fresh men, were at the oars. "The tide keeps washing her down. Could you pull a little stronger?"

"No, without swamping the boat," said he. "You must bear up, sir, if you please—bear up until you see you're gaining."

I tried, and found by experiment that the tide kept sweeping us westward until I had laid her head due east, or just about right angles to the way we ought to go.

"We'll never get ashore at this rate," said I.

"If it's the only course that we can lie, sir, we must even lie it," returned the captain. "We must keep upstream. You see, sir," he went on, "if once we dropped to leeward of the landing-place, it'd hard to say where we should get ashore, besides the chance of being boarded by the gigs; whereas, when we go the current must slacken, and then we can dodge back along the shore."

"The current's less steady, sir," said the man Gray, who was sitting in the fore-sheets; "you can ease her off a bit."

"Thank you, my man," said I, quite as if nothing had happened; for we had all simply made up our minds to treat him like one of ourselves.

Suddenly the captain spoke up again, and I thought his voice was a little changed.

"The gun!" said he.

"I have thought of that," said I, for I made sure he was thinking of the bombardment of the fort. "They could never get the gun ashore, and if they did, it could never haul it through the woods."

"Look astern, doctor," replied the captain.

We had entirely forgotten the long nine; and there, to our horror, were the five rogues busy about her, getting off her jacket, as they called the stout tarpaulin cover under which she sailed. Not only that, but it flashed into my mind at the same moment that the round shot and the powder for the gun had been left behind, and a stroke with an ax would put it all into the possession of the evil ones aboard.

"Is that Jim? That's gunner," said Gray hoarsely.

At any risk, we put the boat's head direct for the landing-place. By this time we had got so far out of the run of the current that we kept steering west way even at our necessarily gentle rate of rowing, and I could keep her steady for the goal. But the worst of it was that, with the course I now held, we turned our broadside instead of our stern to the "Banshees," and offered a target like a barn-door.

I could hear, as well as see, that brandy-faced rascal, Israel Hands, plumping down a round-shot on the deck.

"Who's the best shot?" asked the captain.

"Mr. Trelawney, will you please pick me off one of those men, sir? Hands, if possible," said the captain.

Trelawney was as cold as steel. He looked to the priming of his gun.

"Now," cried the captain, "easy with that gun, sir, or you'll swamp the boat. All hands stand by to trim her when he aims."

The squire raised his gun, the rowing ceased, and we leaned over to the other side to keep the balance, and did all we nicely contrived that we did not ship a bullet.

The squire had the gun, by this time, slewed round upon the swivel and Hands, who was at the muzzle with the rammer, was, in consequence, the most exposed. However, we had no luck; for just as Trelawney fired, down he stooped, the ball whistling past him, and it was one of the other four who fell.

The cry he gave was echoed, not only by his companions on board, but by a great number of voices from the shore, and looking in that direction I saw the other pirates trooping out from among the trees and tumbling into their places in the boats.

"Here come the gigs, sir," said I. "Give way, then," said the captain. "We mustn't mind if we swamp her now. If we can't get ashore, all's up."

"Only one of the gigs is being manned, sir," I added, "the crew of the other most likely going round him to cut us off."

"They'll have a hot run, sir," returned the captain; "black ashore, you know. It's not them I mind; it's the round-shot. Carpet bows! My lady's maid couldn't miss. Tell us, squire, what do you see the match, and we'll hold water."

In the meanwhile we had been making headway at a good pace for a boat so overloaded, and we had shipped but little water in the process. We were now close in; 30 or 40 strokes and we should beach her; for the ebb had already disclosed a narrow belt of sand below the clustering trees. The gig was no longer to be feared; the little point had already concealed it from our view.

The ebb-tide, which had so cruelly delayed us, was now making reparation, and delaying our assailants. The one source of danger was the gun.

"Ready!" cried the captain, quick as an echo.

And he and Redruth backed with a great heave that sent her stern bodily under water. The report fell in at the same instant of time. This was the first that Jim heard, the sound of the squire's shot not having reached him. When the ball passed, not one of us perhaps knew; but I fancy it must have been over our heads, and that the noise which should delay their shot, had never so much as looked at their fallen comrade, though he was not dead, and I could see him trying to crawl away.

"Ready!" cried the squire. "Hold!" cried the captain, quick as the colors.

This seemed mighty to relieve him. He recited the log house and set about counting the stores, as if nothing else existed. But he had an eye on Tom's passage for all that; and as soon as all was over came forward with another flag and reverently spread it on the body.

"Don't you take on, sir," he said, shaking the squire's hand. "All's well with him; no fear for a hand that's been shot down in his duty to captain and owner. It mayn't be good divinity, but it's a fact."

Then he pulled me aside.

"Livesey," he said, "in how many weeks do you and square expect the consort?"

I told him it was a question, not of weeks, but of months; that if we were not back by the end of August, Blandy was to send to find us; but neither sooner nor later. You can calculate for yourself," I said.

"Why, yes," returned the captain, stretching his head, "and making a large allowance, sir, for all the gifts of Providence, I should say we were pretty close-hauled."

"How do you mean?" I asked.

"It's a pity, sir, we lost the second load. That's what I mean," replied the captain. "As for the first load and shot, we'll do. But the ratings are short, short—short to short, Dr. Livesey, that we're perhaps as well without that extra mouth."

And he pointed to the dead body under the flag.

Just then, with a roar and a whistle, a round shot passed high above the roof of the log house and plumped fair beyond us in the wood.

"Oho!" said the captain. "Blaze away! You're little enough powder already, lad."

At the second trial the aim was better and the ball descended inside the stockade, scattering a cloud of sand, but doing no further damage.

"Calm down," said the squire. "The house is quite invisible from the ship; it must be the flag they are aiming at. Would it not be wiser to take it in?"

"Strike my colors!" cried the captain.

"No, sir, not I!" and, as soon as he had said the words, I think we all agreed with him. For it was not only a piece of stout, seemly good feeling; it was good policy besides, and showed our enemies that we despised their cannonade.

All through the evening they kept thundering away. Ball after ball flew over or fell short, or kicked up the sand in the enclosure; but they had to fire fast, and the hounds howled.

"Hark! the hounds!" said the squire.

"Ho! the hounds!" said the squire.

The letter is from G. W. F. Chapman, a brother-in-law of Mrs. Runyon, and the writer says that Mrs. Runyon, a cousin of her husband, has confessed to the murder and robbery of her husband, and also confesses to having murdered Alice Schoolecraft and her baby, whom Harrison Runyon was escorting to their home in Clay county.

THEY SEIZED THE TOWN.

Striking Miners From Pana, Ill., Take Possession of Washington, Ind.—They Drive Out the Negroes—One Shot.

WASHINGTON, Ind., Oct. 3.—This city was in a state of excitement Sunday night. One hundred and fifty coal miners from Pana, Ill., came here Sunday afternoon and met with the home union miners and organized. At 10 o'clock Sunday night they got together and, masked, visited all the shacks where the colored coal miners lived. About fifty of the Negroes were corralled and at the points of revolvers were driven out of town.

One Negro refused to be given the miners fired on him. He has not been found and may be killed.

The police could do nothing.

One brave policeman, Anderson Cannon, went up to the whole mob and demanded of them to disperse. They answered by leveling their pistols at him.

The masked miners took the town, Chief of Police Call turned in the fire alarm and called the citizens to assist in keeping peace.

Several are depicted, and if there is a new outbreak of trouble much bloodshed is likely to result. At 10 a.m. the streets were covered with people. The masked men have hidden themselves, possibly to make an attack on other Negro shacks. There are possibly fifty Negroes who declare they will die before they leave town.

Everything was quiet within the city at 10:30 Monday morning. Small groups of strangers are seen in different parts of the town, and the police believe this means more trouble. The masked miners are believed to have gone to the mines two miles south east of the city, where more of the Negroes are living, with the intention of driving them out. It is said they are bent on killing C. C. Rowland, the white boss. Shots have been heard in that direction for the last half hour, and there may be a battle. The Negroes are armed at the mines and are well protected. It is impossible at this hour to get any news directed from the mines.

FIVE MEN ASSASSINATED.

Four Men Killed and Another Mortally Wounded by a Beast at a Feed in Tennessee.

MURFREESBORO, Tenn., Oct. 3.—An awful tragedy occurred in the northern portion of Cannon county, about 30 miles east of this city, in which five men are reported to have been savagely assassinated. John Hollingsworth killed a man by the name of Higgins in that country something over a year ago. A suit was brought against Hollingsworth and a judgment taken against him by the members of Higgins family for $5,000. Saturday there was to be an auction sale of his property to satisfy this judgment and Hollingsworth, it is stated, knowing that that was the day for the sale concealed himself and several of his friends in a large barn on the place where the sale was to be. When the party of men came to carry out the proceeding, and had gathered in the barn, Hollingsworth and his friends fled from them with double-barrel shotguns, killing four men and wounding another so badly that he will hardly recover.

A telephone message has been received from Woodbury, Cannon county, stating that the Cannon county murderer and assassin, James Hollingsworth, has been shot and severely wounded. A crowd of 60 men have him located and expected to capture him Sunday night, together with his accomplices.

WELCOME SNOW AND RAIN.

The Forest Fire in Colorado Checked, and it Is Thought Further Destruction of Timber is Prevented.

DENVER, Colo., Oct. 3.—Snow and rain have checked the progress of the forest fires on the main range in Colorado, and it is now thought that further destruction of timber is prevented. At least all danger to the threatened towns is over. The temperature here has fallen perceptibly and dissipates from the mountain towns indicate a similar temperature change. At present nothing like a correct estimate of the damage done can be given and it will be days before an accurate statement of the losses by the fires that have been raging for a week or more can be made.

A TIDAL STORM.

The Lowlands Surrounding Savannah Are Under Water for Miles.

About 15 Per Cent. of the Rice Crop is Lost—Much Damage to Shipping—It is Feared the Loss of Life Was Very Heavy.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 3.—For 18 hours, from 3 o'clock Sunday morning until 6 o'clock Sunday night, Savannah has been in the grasp of a West Indian cyclone. During that time the wind blew steadily from fifty to seventy miles an hour. While the city escaped with comparatively little damage, the loss of property among the sea islands of the Georgia and South Carolina coasts is believed to be heavy. For miles in every direction around Savannah the lowlands along the rivers are submerged.

Only one fatality has so far been reported—the drowning of a Negro while attempting to reach the mainland from a small island near Thunderbolt—but heavy loss of life is feared on the South Carolina sea islands, where such fearful loss of life occurred during the great tidal storm of 1893. The conditions now are similar to those during that storm. Owing to the submerged country and the isolated location of the islands no news can be had from them until the water subsides. For eight miles north of Savannah the entire country is a lake with only the banks

THE EVACUATION OF CUBA.

It is Thought That It Will Have Been Accomplished by the Beginning of the New Year, if Not Sooner.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—A Special to the Herald from Washington says:

If the present plans are carried out it is expected that the evacuation of Cuba will have been completed by December 31 and the new year will see the American colors raised all over the island.

It is believed the plans will be carried out, because advices from the military commission in Havana indicate that Spain will no longer contend for delay. It is said that the transports which took the prisoners from Santiago will promptly return to Cuba to facilitate a speedy evacuation.

These transports have a capacity of 25,000. I am further informed that it is not likely that more than 60,000 or 75,000 soldiers will return to Spain.

The other 50,000 or 60,000 will remain, lay down their arms and become citizens of the island. This, it is considered, will be in no wise objectionable to this government. Secretary Alger has said that 50,000 or 60,000 United States troops will be stationed in Cuba, at points which will probably be decided upon within the next few days. It is the plan of the administration not to concentrate any great number of troops in any one place. The army of occupation will probably consist of four infantry divisions and one cavalry division. The plan of keeping the 7th

A SOLDIER'S ESCAPE.

From the Democrat-Messenger, Mt. Sterling, Ill.

When Richmond had fallen and the great commanders had met beneath the great apple tree at Appomattox, the 83d Pennsylvania Volunteers, prematurely aged, clad in tatters and rags, broken in body but of dauntless spirit, marched into the last "grand review," and then quietly marched away.

As it happened, the young man had an opportunity to talk with the young woman alone, and he did not fail to throw his brains at her.

Among the number was Robinson come back to the old home in Mt. Sterling, Ill., back to the fireside that he had left at the close of the war. He was a happy, healthy farmer boy, in the full flower of vigorous manhood.

To-day he is an alert, active man and the story of his recovery is as follows:

"I was a great sufferer from scurvy, rheumatism and other diseases, but my recovery was rapid. At 10 a.m. I was able to walk more than half a mile without pain, and I kept on improving steadily. I took three boxes of pills, and when I was well again I began to walk farther. Then I never been better. I have never been bothered with rheumatism. Dr. Williams' Pills is what I have used ever since, and to them I owe my restoration to comparative health. They are a grand remedy."

War Matters.

The Spanish Peace Commissioners at Paris are under instructions by their government to not under any circumstances allow the United States to interfere with the disposal of the Philippines or other islands outside of those retained by the United States.

That is supposed to indicate that some other power is negotiating for some of the islands or Spain is bidding for the support of some power that wants a coaling or naval station. The Commissioners are also instructed to take a "firm stand" in regard to the Cuban debt, and the Philippine loan of 1896 if the Island of Luzon is ceded to the United States.

The U. S. Peace Commissioners reached Paris the night of Sept. 26th and held their first meeting the next day, to prepare for work at the Continental Hotel. The general and diplomatic feeling in Paris are decidedly more friendly than to the United States.

The U. S. Cuban Evacuation Commission called down the Spanish for removing a large-calibre rapid-fire gun from a land battery and Blanco is ordered to disband them. Unemployed Spaniards in Cuba will be taken back home at the expense of Spain.

President McKinley's instructions to his commission to investigate the conduct of the war by the War Department show that he means business and not a white-washing party.

The supposed remains of Christopher Columbus will be taken from Havana to Granada, Spain, where they will rest until they are removed again.

Gen. Wood has the civil government of Santiago de Cuba in good working order. Major McClay, ex-Attorney General of Texas, has been appointed Mayor. The Cubans are heartily co-operating, a committee of fifty making recommendations of officers.

Gen. Garcia insists that nothing short of absolute independence will satisfy the Cubans. Any other proposal would probably bring on a conflict with the United States. He says he will, personally, do all he can to smooth matters.

About 25 per cent. of the American troops in Porto Rico are ill and don't recuperate in that climate.

The official report of the casualties of the war from all causes from the beginning up to August 31st show: In Porto Rico, 3 killed, 4 officers and 36 men wounded; at Manila, 15 killed, 10 officers and 88 men wounded; in Cuba, 23 officers and 237 men killed, 99 officers and 1,338 men wounded; died from other causes, 9 officers and 83 men of wounds, 30 men of accidents, 75 officers and 2,150 men of disease.

With the Democratic party of New York split and the Republicans united it looks like Ted Roosevelt has the call, and he is one of the popular figures of the war besides.

CHRISTOPHER COLUMBUS' ghost at the latest removal of the remains from Havana: "Durn an aphorism, now! One says 'It's cheaper to move than pay rent' and another says 'Three removes are equal to a fire.'

The Todd faction of Louisville Republicans has nominated James H. Hambrick for Congress. Walter Evans is the regular nominee. Oscar Turner, the Democratic nominee, has an easier thing if it apparently. Unless Jolly and Fowler make up their quarrel and one withdraws the Second district race too seems lost to the Republicans.

COL. THEODORE ROOSEVELT defeated Gov. Black by 753 to 218 for the New York gubernatorial nomination in the State Republican convention Sept. 27th. As his apparent ineligibility has been explained away Rough Riding Ted will be in the race from start to finish. It will be a mighty rocky road for a to any one that tries to beat him to the goal, just as it would be for any one to race against Old Jo Wheeler for Congress in his Alabama district.

R. G. DUN & Co. say all recent commercial changes are for the better except the price of cotton, which is the lowest for fifty years.

The Dowager Empress of China evidently strongly inclines to the belief that the clothes make the man. The young Emperor appeared one day in regular European store clothes, and the Dowager Empress made him come off the throne, which she mounted herself. It is surely a queer state of affairs that permits her course. She must be a powerful female. The Emperor's death is reported.

P. WAT HARDIN is not going to let Wm. Goebel have a walkover for the gubernatorial nomination. John Young Brown says if he decides to run he'll make it hot for somebody. Wm. B. Smith and Wm. Stone are likely to be in the race, and there are perhaps others. A halcyon and vociferous time is in prospect when the political scene is fully on next year.

The War Investigating Commission isn't going about its work like it had any notion of expelling anybody for mismanagement. The net it has spread looks like it would let no guilty or incompetent one escape the blame. President McKinley told them if they found that any fault lies with any one from Secretary Alger down to the bureau chiefs that person's resignation would be demanded at once.

The Silver Democracy of New York bolted the regular Democratic State convention and nominated Henry George, son of the dead great single taxer, for Governor. Of course, it makes all the difference in the world as to who does the bolting, and the Chicago-platform Democrats of the South and West will probably sympathize with it if not openly uphold the New York bolters. On the other hand, the National Democrats support Van Wyck.

LIEUT. RICHMOND P. HOBSON has won fresh honors. Despite the opinion of other naval officers that it couldn't be done, he raised the sunken Spanish first-class armored cruiser Maria Teresa and brought it to Guantamano harbor, where it will be repaired sufficiently to be brought to a U. S. naval yard for reconstruction as a vessel of the navy. Hobson will now try his hand at raising the Cristobal Moncayo, the finest of Cervera's squadron.

The Silver Democratic delegates at the New York State convention at Syracuse met to organize a bolt if the convention ignored the Chicago platform. "Bolt" was the word and the intending bolters meeting itself was bolted by a faction of nearly half the delegates, numbering 134. The balance remained and resolved to bolt the regular convention on the condition named. The regular convention did ignore the Chicago platform, and nominated a brother of Mayor Van Wyck, of New York, for Governor. Tammany's entire slate went through.

THOMAS F. BAYARD, of Delaware, ex-U. S. Senator, Cleveland's first Secretary of State, and ex-Ambassador to Great Britain, died, near Dedham, Massachusetts, Sept. 28th, of arteriosclerosis. He was on a visit to his son-in-law S. D. Warren when he took ill. Mr. Bayard was an honest, courageous, clean, conservative Democratic statesman. He was above the arts of demagogic in politics and was perhaps too aristocratic in his tastes to secure a large and enthusiastic personal following, but his services were invaluable to the Democratic party in the period succeeding the Civil War.

Mrs. Sis Gilven, of near Sharpsburg, visited her sister, Mrs. J. M. Collier, a few days last week.

I see Jas. Barnes has been appointed as one of the Election Commissioners. The Populist party fought Goebel all along the line. We will see whether those that oppose such one-sided affairs will practice what they preach.

In reply to "West End" in last week's issue of THE OUTLOOK where he says I should come out on live issues, "the issues you would have us imitate are not those removed from a puddle duck." As you seem to be an advocate of what you term "sound money" tell us something about it, use some argument not conjectures, for I notice in a great many who take up this question they produce just about as much argument as there is in the end of a sawlog. Let me warn you in advance that you don't get into a tangle of inconsistencies when you advocate a gold standard and oppose bonds. Bonds mean slavery for the masses and riches for the classes. They are the same whether county, State or national.
